"Words cannot express how we felt from the planning of our birthday and retirement events. Even from another state Kontour Event Management did an exceptional job in the planning, executing and follow-up for the two events. When she came in town she hit the ground running finalizing every detail. All we had to do was show up. Everyone that attended had a marvelous time and stated that they would spread the word on this memory lasting affair."

Created by Krystal J. Cain, Kontour Event Management was created for a love of planning, organizing and being creative. In looking at different career paths, she thought about being an event planner and looked into what it would take.

“ At Kontour Event Management all events are ‘Kontoured with the Client in Mind.’ ”

"Instead of working for someone else, I thought it would be an exciting journey to create an event company that I could call my own that had unlimited possibilities and opportunity," Cain said. "I have a huge imagination and am very creative, so couple that with structure and organization, you have a great event that people will enjoy."

A full-service event management, design and operations company based in Atlanta, Georgia, Cain chose the name "Kontour" because it means to shape or form, and she likes to be different, just like most other individuals.

"No one wants to go to the same holiday party, business meeting or masquerade ball, so we kontour your ideas for it.

Kontour Event Management services the Metro Atlanta area and the nation, and they plan and design a variety of events in the corporate and social arenas. They work with social clients – busy people who don't have time to plan a party and wants Kontour to plan from start to finish. They work with day-of clients as well. Additionally, the company services small-to medium-sized businesses that may not have an event or marketing department.

Their unique technique to having successful events is taking project management standards from the Project Management Institute® for planning and adding their own creative out-of-the-box thinking to create a memorable, kontoured experiences. Cain believe she's here to serve her clients through her talents.

"What sets my company apart is my caring, attention and execution. Anyone can plan, think and dream, but we execute on those ideas for a great event," she said. "I add value to your event. There are no worries here! I can find vendors and venues for any budget. It's about relationships with your vendors, venues and clients."

When working with the company, clients have a high-standard company managing their events. And Cain is involved in every consultation and every end result of an event, ensuring budget and other details and requirements are met.

"It is about problem solving – also called risk management – when something goes wrong, and it will. I have pre-planned action plans that can be put into place and think quickly on my feet, so you don't have to worry about a bad microphone, forgetting a knife to cut the cake or reminder notifications," she said. "We have knowledge and experience in design, event technology, event marketing and social media. It is endless how we can take various elements and make it into an event.

"It's not about me; it's about my client, which is why all events are 'Kontoured with the Client in Mind.'"

With a motto of "Always challenge the status quo," Cain goes through life with a goal to continue enhancing these skills through planning elaborate events and seeing the end result – a satisfied and repeat client. To learn more, visit <http://www.kontoureventmgmt.com>.
