

My charge to you now is this: Keep the solemn vows you have made to each other this day. Live with tender consideration one to another, conduct your lives in honesty and with truth. If you do this, your marriage will last, your home will endure, the marriage vows you re-affirmed to each other this day will be a blessing unto you, and you in turn will be a blessing to others.

CELTIC WEDDING BLESSING

May the road rise up to meet you. May the wind be always at your back.

May the sun shine warm upon your face and the rains fall soft upon your fields. May the light of friendship guide your path together. May the laughter of children grace the halls of your home. May the joy of living one for another trip a smile from your lips and a twinkle from your eye. And when eternity beckons at the end of a life heaped high with love, may the good Lord embrace you with the arms that have nurtured you the whole length of your joy-filled days. May the gracious God hold you both in the palm of His hands. And today, may the Spirit of love find a dwelling place in your hearts. Amen.

REAFFIRMATION OF THE DECLARATION OF MARRIAGE

Groom and Bride: Since you have re-affirmed your marriage vows to each other this day, it is now my pleasure to pronounce you to continue as husband and wife together.

You may now kiss the bride, again!

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: It gives me great pleasure to present to you,

Mr. and Mrs.

Dear Friends, we have come together on this day to witness the renewal of wedding vows of Groom and Bride and to celebrate with them.

The challenge and joy of marriage is in the give and take relationship between two personalities for mutual enrichment in all areas of life; mental, physical and spiritual. Marriage is a dynamic changing entity and a life-long lesson.

It is the responsibility of each partner to grow and change with it, secure in the knowledge that one thing is always constant: the love you have for each other.

Groom and Bride, you are about to reaffirm a union which is most sacred and serious, requiring of those who enter into it a complete and unreserved giving of self.

May the love with which you joined your hands and hearts together on your wedding day years ago, never fail you but grow stronger and deeper as the years go by.

May this marriage continue to grow and mature with each passing year until the latter days become more wonderful than the first.

THE WEDDING VOWS

Groom: Do you give yourself anew to Bride to be her husband, promising to love, comfort, honour, cherish and protect her, forsaking all others to be faithful to her alone for as long as you both shall live?

Groom to answer: "I do"

Bride: Do you give yourself anew to Groom to be his wife, promising to love, comfort, honour, respect and protect him, forsaking all others to be faithful to him alone for as long as you both shall live?

Bride to answer: "I do."

Please repeat after me.

I Groom hold you Bride always to be my wife, to have and to hold, for better or worse, for richer or poorer, in sickness and in health, to love and to cherish; you and no other.
As God is my witness, I give you my promise.

I Bride hold you Groom always to be my husband, to have and to hold, for better or worse, for richer or poorer, in sickness and in health, to love and to cherish; you and no other.
As God is my witness, I give you my promise.

IF RINGS ARE BEING PRESENTED

Groom to Bride: With this ring, I renew my marriage vows to you. May this continue to be a symbol of my everlasting love and devotion to you.

Bride to Groom: With this ring, I renew my marriage vows to you. May this continue to be a symbol of my everlasting love and devotion to you.

Groom and Bride, may these rings be blessed, and as these rings are round, unbroken circles with no ending, so let your love be to each other.
