Animal Displays, Shows and Demonstrations

The Training Game

$100 per presentation (approximately 15 minutes)

The key to successful teamwork is good communication. Trainers and animals are no exception. Both try hard to work together, but you can imagine it is a bit harder when one team member can't talk! Learn the basics of animal training, and then apply the same principles to train your friends and colleagues as they try their hand at The Training Game.

Parrot Painting Package

$200 per presentation (approximately 15 minutes)

Keeping our animals mentally stimulated is quite the challenge. Meet Pele, our blue and gold macaw as he demonstrates some natural behaviors with a twist. See how he uses his agile feet and strong beak to paint on artist canvas – perfect for a door prize or raffle item, or just a great memento of your zoo event. With advanced notice, Pele can use your company/group colors!

Donation Station

$200 per presentation (generally one hour)

Meet Pierre, the vulture who is out for money! He's happy to take guests' cash or checks and stuff them into his specially-designed donation bin. Keep what he takes in and put some dough into your 'nest egg'.

Geocaching at the Zoo

A High-tech Treasure Hunt

Geocaching is an outdoor treasure-hunting game that originated in Beavercreek, Ore. With it, players search for hidden containers called caches using GPS-enabled devices, and then share their experiences online. In March, the Oregon Zoo placed four caches on its grounds, posting the GPS coordinates online at www.geocaching.com. Since then, a number of geocachers have found the containers and posted about their experiences on the website, writing comments like "Another great zoo cache for my grandson," and "In good condition, thanks."

Each zoo cache is a small locked box with a logbook inside. Its GPS location and lock combination are posted on geocaching.com for players to find and use to open the cache. Decorations on each cache reflect the environment in which it is placed: a picture of silverware on the cache near the animal commissary, for example, and a painting of a train on the cache by the zoo railway.

All four caches have been placed with permission and can only be accessed when the zoo is open. Each has its own website with information and directions:
